

Continuation of placement / assistance for young adults in the case of foster children

If it is important for their development, young adults can also receive help with upbringing after their 18th birthday and be placed in full-time care.

- PiB- Pflegekinder in Bremen gemeinnützige GmbH

Basic information

The goals of help with upbringing in full-time care are not achieved in the short term. When a foster child turns 18, assistance can be continued. This is to ensure that progress achieved in the development of the young adult is not jeopardized. Young adults receive assistance as long as their personality development does not allow them to lead a self-determined, independent and responsible life.

In the case of continuation of the assistance, the previous offer is continued.

The continuation of help must be applied for before the 18th birthday. It can be granted until the child reaches the age of 21. In exceptional cases, it can also be granted beyond this age.

Requirements

Granting of help for upbringing according to §27 SGB VIII.

The continuation of the help can be applied for if the end of the help is due to the approaching age of majority and/or because a continuation would contribute to the stabilization of the situation of the adolescent or young adult.

Procedure

- The application for continuation of assistance is made by the adolescents or young adults themselves.
- PiB - Pflegekinder in Bremen gemeinnützige GmbH advises and supports them in this process.
