

Apply for infection protection instruction including certificate

If you come into contact with open food in the course of your work (e.g. producing or working with food), you will need a certificate from the public health department confirming that you have been instructed in infection protection before you start working in the food sector for the first time.

Competent Department

- Gesundheitsamt Bremen

Basic information

Any person who produces, handles, sells or otherwise places food on the market on a commercial basis and comes into direct or indirect contact with food via plates or cutlery requires a certificate from the public health department in accordance with Section 43 of the Infection Protection Act. This applies, for example, to people who work in restaurants, canteens or communal catering facilities. People who regularly spend time in the kitchens of facilities, such as cleaning assistants or dishwashers, also require a certificate.

The aim of the instruction is to enable you to recognize your own symptoms of infectious diseases or those of your employees at an early stage. You should also be able to prevent the spread and contamination of food and assess when you should no longer carry out your work if you have certain symptoms.

The certificate is proof of successful participation in an instruction course on infection protection measures.

The certificate is valid for life if you start working with food no later than 3 months after obtaining the certificate. If you already have a health certificate, you do not need a new health certificate.

In Bremen, the certificate is only issued by the public health department.

More information

The certificate replaces the previous health certificates (§§ 17, 18 of the Federal Epidemics Act). The old certificates (from 1980) remain valid.

After the instruction, it must be declared in text form that there are no known facts for an activity ban.

If there are indications that there are reasons for an impediment to working in the food sector, the certificate may only be issued if a medical certificate proves that the relevant impediment no longer exists.

The certificate is only valid if you start working with food within 3 months of it being issued.

As the issued certificate is valid for life, please keep it in a safe place!

Further information on the subject of health certificates can be found on the homepage of the public health department.

What deadlines must be paid attention to?

The activity must be commenced within the first 3 months after receipt of the health certificate/instruction. The health certificate is then valid for life. An interruption of the activity does not cancel the lifelong validity.
