

Tolerance

You are tolerated in Bremen or you are obliged to leave the country but still want to apply for a "Duldung" because you really cannot leave Germany? You can find further information here:

- Migrationsamt

Basic information

The suspension of deportation, the so-called toleration, is not a legal residence permit. Duldung is granted to foreigners who actually have to leave Germany because they cannot be granted a residence permit, but whose deportation is impossible for legal or factual reasons.

A toleration can be granted,

- because travel to the country of origin is indeed impossible,
- because the person in question does not have a passport from his or her country of origin and this passport cannot be obtained at present
- because he himself or a close relative is seriously ill or is pregnant at an advanced stage and for this reason is not fit to travel,
- as long as a spouse or minor children are still in the asylum procedure or have a residence permit or toleration certificate and no residence permit can be issued,
- for the duration of a training course,
- to minors who do not have parents in their country of origin who can look after them.

As a rule, tolerated persons may only take up residence at the location of the foreigners authority which has granted the toleration.

Travel abroad is not possible with a tolerance permit.

Employment is only permitted with the approval of the migration office and must be applied for in individual cases, see service "Employment as toleration holder".

Procedure

If you are required to leave Germany but cannot leave due to an emergency, see Basic Information, please send us an e-mail to abt3hum@migrationsamt.bremen.de

Please note that you must present your personal interests in a well-founded way, with proof, e.g. through well-founded specialist medical certificates. We will then examine your request and call or write to you if we need further information or evidence. If the legally prescribed reasons for which we may grant a tolerance permit are present in your case, you will receive a formal tolerance permit. If we cannot grant you a tolerance, you will receive a justified decision.

Tolerated persons who have already been granted a Toleration by the Migration Office will be contacted before expiry of the Toleration in order to clarify whether the obstacle to departure still exists. If the obstacle to departure still exists, the toleration is extended. If the obstacle to departure no longer exists, you will receive a reasoned decision.
